

Lee named police chief at city council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Robert Lee was named to the position of Bay St. Louis Police Chief at Tuesday night's city council meeting at City Hall.

Lee, who served as interim chief following the dismissal of Ray Murphy in November 1989, told the council he was pleased to have been selected for the post and that he intended to do the best job possible as police chief.

Other business conducted at the meeting included the presentation of Mayor's Community Achievement Awards to John Harris of Jitney Jungle, Phil LaGrange and Ed Jurkowski of Antiques and Goodies Galore, and the members of the St. Rose Choir.

Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre said, "Before I give these to you, I just want to tell you how much the city appreciates the many contributions you've made to the city. You've put a lot into the community, and we thank you for the work you've done."

At the council's invitation, the St. Rose Choir sang the invocation that opened the meeting.

Business discussed at the meeting included:

—cleanup of several lots, owned by A.J. Burgess, Elton A. Williams, Michael Imbornone, Rosie McGowan, James Pittman and Carl Hodges.

—a neighborhood-wide cleanup project for DeMontluzin Street

—the approval of a letter quote for the replacement of a police department vehicle engine, and —the opening of several bids for sand, clay gravel, culverts and leased equipment.

In the public forum segment of the meeting, Ruth Thompson of the Bay St. Louis Business Association asked for and obtained for the association a permit to hold an Easter parade April 15 at noon, and permission to use the city park April 21 for an outdoor concert.

She also reminded the council that a cleanup of Cat Island is scheduled for April 7, and invited council members to participate.

After completing business listed on the agenda, the council adjourned until its April 3 meeting.

Chief plans few changes

BY TRACI BONNEY

Robert Lee, unanimously approved as Bay St. Louis Police Chief at Tuesday's city council meeting, said he plans no major changes in the running of the department at this time.

Lee was named to the position of chief while serving as interim chief for the third time during his five years on the force.

A law enforcement veteran, Lee served as deputy for the Harrison County Sheriff's Department 12 years and deputy for the Hancock County Sheriff's Department for two years.

Lee said the last additions of officers took place in January, when reserve officers Joe Kepfer and Kurt Raymond were hired for full-time positions.

Kepfer, who is from California, had served in the reserve unit about a year, and Raymond, a December graduate from the University of Southern Mississippi, had served several months.

Supervisors expected to award building bid

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is expected to approve a bid for construction of a long-awaited office facility at their March 30 board meeting.

The board opened bids last week and had an informal meeting Tuesday with the architect of the building, Michael Reeves, to discuss alternate versions of some of the details of the projects, mostly parking arrangements.

The building will be constructed at the former Hancock County Fairgrounds next to the existing building, which is now known as the Hancock County Civic Center.

The apparent low bidder for the construction at the opening of the bids was G.M. & R. of Bay St. Louis.

The base amount they bid was just short of $1.1 million and the bond issue for construction includes $1.2 million, Board President Ronald Cuevas said.

The board has agreed to construct two of the three proposed parking lots for the facility. The third and smallest would have served primarily to handle overflow from events at the civic center.

The building will house the county's human services departments, which include the welfare department, health department, Mississippi

Employment Service and the county branch of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Hancock County has been attempting to build this particular facility, referred to in meetings and bid advertisements as "the multi-purpose building", for the past several years.

A previous administration attempted to obtain grant funding for the project twice, but was unsuccessful. The bond issue was passed earlier this year after the board decided that further attempts to obtain a grant would only delay the project, Cuevas stated at that

Rules suspension may allow vote on bingo bill

BY DENA BISNETTE

The bingo issue is not dead—there is hope until next week.

State Representative J.P. Compretta said Wednesday that he tried to save some time regarding a bingo-related resolution which came into the House of Representatives from the State Senate that morning, but his attempt was unsuccessful.

"I tried to have it brought up for immediate consideration, but it went into the rules committee anyway," Compretta stated. The resolution asks that rules be suspended to allow introduction of a bingo bill after the deadline for introduction, which has already passed.

"I have talked to the chairman of the rules committee and have urged him to act on this as soon as possible," he added.

The resolution was initiated by Senator Tommy Gollot of Biloxi and passed 37-12.

If it is approved, it will allow introduction of a bill proposing that a referendum on bingo be allowed on the ballot for the next statewide election.

The referendum, if passed, would exempt bingo from the lottery prohibitions of Section 98 of the Mississippi Constitution by declaring in a constitutional amendment that it is not a lottery.

In the meantime, Compretta said, there is a Mississippi Supreme Court case pending which could determine whether or not bingo is a lottery.

"Of course, we are talking about bingo for charitable purposes only," Compretta stated. "Bingo for profit would be strictly prohibited."

"This is another one of our attempts to make sure we get bingo back," the representative

BY TRACI BONNEY

Plans have begun for the 11th year of the Bay St. Louis Beachfront Festival, scheduled for Sunday, June 3.

The event, sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Business Association, will reflect community involvement and family-oriented activities and exhibits, said association president Ruth

"We have made plans for over 60 informational exhibits and displays, representing a cross-section of community agencies and business," Thompson said.

"The event committee is especially interested in again obtaining participation from entities based onboard the John C. Stennis Space Center as well as from the military commands and private industries along the Gulf Coast."

Thompson asked businesses

The festival is scheduled to start at noon June 3 and end at 7 p.m. Set-up of booths and displays will begin at 9 a.m.

In addition, Lee said, two part-time dispatchers and 10 reservists have been added to the force.

"We want to get the reserve unit up to about 40 people," Lee said. "We're trying to beef up the reserve unit to supplement our patrols."

The reserve officers are volunteers who serve at least 12 hours a month on patrol other duties. Reserve officers are not paid, Lee said, unless they substitute for an officer who is temporarily off-duty due to vacation, illness or some other cause.

Reserve officers, like full-time officers, attend police academy courses during their training period. While full-time officers attend the academy five days a week for nine weeks, Lee said, reserve officers attend two nights a week for 13 weeks.

However, both reserve and full-time officers learn the same things, he added.

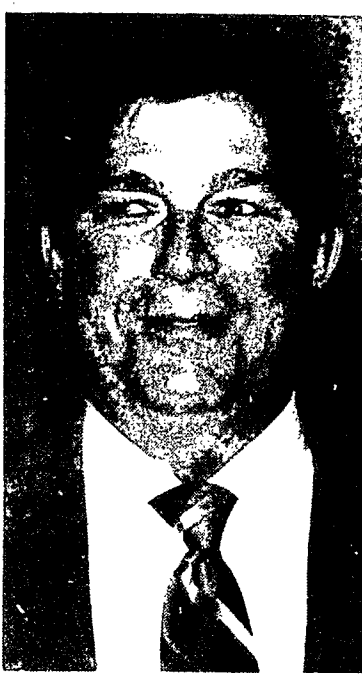

Speaking of his appointment, Lee acknowledged that he did not consider taking the job when the opening was first announced. "But I thought about it and decided to take it."

"The job is a challenge, Lee said. "We have a good department, and we want to make it better. There's always room for improvement."

Lee, 46, is a Poplarville native and graduate of Gulfport High School. He was trained at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Training Academy and numerous management schools.

He is the father of three and currently resides in Pass Christian, but said he plans to relocate to Bay St. Louis.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Read any good signs lately?

Have you ever read a sign—a road sign, a billboard, whatever?

I mean, really read it, not just glanced at it as you flew by at 80 miles an hour on the way to work? You ought to try it sometime. There's some really amusing stuff adorning the sides of our roads and interiors of our buildings.

I like to read signs, and even collect a few. No, I don't go dig them up or pry them loose, as some teenagers and college students are prone to do. I whip out my trusty Ricoh and snap a shot or two of a sign if it makes me chuckle.

For instance, a vacant lot in north Mississippi once had half a fireworks stand sign on it. The sign, complete with a picture of the earth and a space shuttle, read, "World/Buy one get one free."

Another sign in that area both raised a chuckle and caused some concern for the image of that part of the state.

The Columbus, Mississippi Commercial Dispatch had been widely publicizing local efforts to fight adult illiteracy. Meanwhile, a highway road sign had for years given directions to "Golden Triangle Regional Airport" instead of Golden Triangle Regional Airport.

Sometimes, the sign is both amusing and meaningful. For instance, an arrow sign at one Columbus business frequently displayed messages that had little to do with the actual running of the business.

My favorite of all the messages on that sign was: "Going to church doesn't make you a Christian any more than going into a garage makes you a car."

Of course, most folks around here will remember the recently moved sign in Picayune that said, "Jesus is Lord over Picayune." Personally, I like it, but I'm sure it draws a chuckle or two from many people.

Classroom bulletin boards and posters are two more sources of amusement. A room at the Noxubee County Vocational-Technical Center proudly displayed a bulletin board with the phrase "The Art of Improvement."

There were only a few problems. Most of the letters were crooked; the rick-rack-style border was falling off the board; and a few letters were missing completely.

A poster that caught my eye sat on a table in the Noxubee County Extension Office. It read, "You are what you eat." That's normal enough for a poster designed to be used in classroom presentations on nutrition; however, it was propped up on the table behind a collection of African violets, ivy and other plants.

Amusing signs are not confined to the northern part of the state, however.

Of course, some signs are designed to amuse, such as one in Deja Vue Antiques on Main Street. A poster in the storefront window states you know you're getting old when you see your old cereal bowl in an antique shop.

Another Main Street gem is in the residential part of the street. It says, "Rabbits and equipment for sale."

What kind of equipment are we talking about here? Do the rabbits use it? Do you use it on the rabbits? Or does the equipment have anything whatsoever to do with the bunnies?

Completely unrelated to the rabbits and their equipment (I hope) is the post the sign is nailed to, which has the word "worms" stencilled on it. Anybody care to explain this?

Just as amusing signs are not restricted to north Mississippi, they are not restricted to the Bay St. Louis area. The yard of a man nicknamed the "Mayor of DeLisle" was once the site of many wrecks because drivers tended to take the curve too fast after the last bridge on Henderson Avenue. A sign set up in his yard warned drivers to slow down.

I don't remember the exact wording, but the gist of the sign was, "Go slow and see DeLisle. Go fast and see the mayor."

One sign that surely was not intended to be amusing, but makes me laugh every time I see it, has nestled among the pine trees on Hwy. 49 north of Orange Grove for many years. It reads "Parker's Scrap Metal and Pecans."

Each time I see it I think of a comment a friend once made when she saw it. She read it, blinked a time or two, and said in her best little-girl voice (even though she was about 20 at the time), "Does that mean he sells nuts and bolts?"

Bumper stickers and personalized license plates are another source of amusement. I'll give you just one example, but I think I'll save the others for a later column.

This one is a combination of the two I saw on a car in Gulfport. The car was ahead of me in slow, heavy traffic. God must have put it there to give me a laugh, because that's what it did.

The bumper sticker read, "God loves you and so do I." The personalized license plate read "GRUMP."

My all-time favorite sign is, again, one I saw in Columbus. This one stayed in place for at least two years and still may be in place, for all I know.

It belonged to a car wash and intended to say, "We hand wash." However, part of the "a" in "wash" was broken off, and the sign instead said, "We hand wish."

Think about that one for a minute.

So, next time you're breaking the speed limit to arrive at work 2.5 minutes faster, slow down and read sign or two. You may get a smile or two more, and a ticket or two less, from it.

time.

A small portion of the cost of the project is expected to be returned to the county through a federal rebate to the welfare department, which is currently housed in a deteriorating former creamery on Necaise Avenue, Cuevas said.

In addition, the county could recover some more of the money if the board decides to sell the Necaise Avenue property or the health department site on Dunbar Avenue.

The extension service is currently in leased quarters, while the employment service is in a city-owned office in the Valena C. Jones Center.

Senate rules suspension request deals with retirees' tax rebate

BY DENA BISNETTE

State Senator Victor Frankiewicz is attempting to have the senate's regular rules suspended in order to provide retired federal employees a tax credit to compensate for the equalization of taxes on state and federal retirement benefits.

The bills passed by the senate and the State House of Representatives have equalized the taxation of state retirement and federal retirement but they have not yet been signed by the governor.

However, the equalization bills do not include provisions for tax credits for the federal retirees who had to pay state taxes on their retirement income while state retirees were exempt.

Frankiewicz said he, along with Senators Bob Usey and Clyde Whitfield, introduced a resolution last week to suspend the rules to allow introduction of a bill providing some compensation.

That compensation, Frankiewicz said, would be provided by allowing federal retirees to redo their state tax returns for the past three years.

They would then be provided a tax credit over the next three years.

"We can't just give them a cash refund," the senator said. "The state treasury is not in good enough shape to do that right now."

He explained that spreading the tax credit over three years would still cause the state to lose about $8.8 million in revenue each year.

Frankiewicz added that there is currently a case in Hinds County Circuit Court is geared toward recovering some of the back taxes paid by the federal retirees who live in Mississippi, but the introduction of a bill to resolve the matter is necessary because the court case could take years.

said. "If (State Attorney General Mike) Moore is successful in the court case, then our only solution is to amend Section 98."

Compretta expects the matter to take a couple of days in the rules committee but believes there is still enough time to introduce the bill and vote on it before the 1990 Legislature adjourns next week if the rules can be suspended.

"Moore stopped the bingo; now it's up to us as legislators to get it back," he said.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is a very busy time of the year as there are many events going on such as the Spring Pilgrimage, the Coast 5-K Challenge and 1 Mile Health Run/Walk, a Bay St. Louis Rotary fund raising picnic and a Crawfish Cook-Off to benefit the Hancock County Law Enforcement Association.

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club's Pilgrimage will be today beginning at 10 a.m. at the center's home on Leonhard Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

Maps of the places on the pilgrimage will be available for this tour open to the public.

On Saturday the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club will sponsor a fund raising picnic at Buccaneer State Park's Pavilion No. 3.

The picnic lunch will include barbecue chicken, hot dogs, hamburgers and refreshments.

There will be both adult and youth games.

Tickets are available from Rotary members at $5 each, or may be purchased at the picnic.

Proceeds from the picnic will be used by Rotary for community activities.

The "REEF" Crawfish Cook-Off will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday at The Reef, Highway 603 at the Jourdan River.

Proceeds will go to benefit the Hancock County Law Enforcement Association.

Several bands will be performing during the day, Reef owner Hester Plaque reported.

The Coast Episcopal Schools annual Coast 5-K Challenge and 1 Mile Health Run/Walk will be held at the War Memorial Park, Pass Christian on Saturday.

Late registrations will be taken from 8 to 8:45 a.m. Saturday with an entry fee.

There will be age groups for both men and women with awards going to first overall male and female and to the top three in each age group.

For further information call Jim Wyhe, 467-9730, Blair Lambert, 452-3669; or Lindo Sullivan, 832-6071.

The Run/Walk sounds like a fun time for all age groups and hope it too, is a successful fund raiser.

It has been a long time since a Rotary Club received a charter in Hancock County, as a matter of fact, not since 1925.

The Diamondhead Rotary Club, sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, will officially receive its charter on Friday night.

The charter was approved by Rotary International on February 23, Rotary's 85th birthday.

I wish the Diamondhead Rotary Club and its members the best and hope they will grow as the Bay St. Louis club has over the years.

Good news on the economic front

The crumbling of the Iron Curtain and the apparent end to the Cold War, along with the shift from planned economies and military might to market economies across Eastern Europe, are already having dramatic impact on the rest of the world.

The nationally recognized Money Management Institute believes the changes mean good news on America's economic front.

The institute has offered these bright hopes for the 1990s, as a result of the fall of communism:

1. A reduction in this nation's military spending, making it easier to reduce the federal deficit.

2. A freeing up of money for investments that raise productivity, as worker training and improved transportation systems.

3. A continuing low rate of inflation, which will encourage housing, construction and business investments.

4. Continuing lower interest rates.

5. An increase in the rate of saving and investing.

The decade of the 1990s seems to be offering considerably better, and even more interesting times.

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

by Sen. Vic Franckiewicz Jr.

State income on federal retirement a big issue

State income on federal retirement has been a major issue for many years. Both the Senate and the House have bills which tax state income equally with federal income, but these bills have not passed the U.S. Supreme Court.

The issue is currently under consideration in the U.S. Supreme Court. The issue is a federal issue which is being litigated in court for regulation of hospices where terminally ill patients reside. —increase the penalties for nonresidents caught hunting or fishing without a license—change the open season on squirrel hunting and archery season on deer and authorize the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks to allow an open season on deer with guns and without dogs after the last season for hunting deer with guns and dogs.

A number of bills which the Senate approved were killed by House of Representatives committees. These include:

—regulate live bait catcher boats —require captain of a vessel to be responsible for seafood violations

—increase penalties for seafood violations

—two proposals to streamline the elections process—one to do away with elections for unopposed candidates and the other to hold statewide elections in even-numbered non-presidential election years at the same time we elect congressmen

—allow voting by absentee ballot for any reason, including being out of town on vacation during an election

—allow voter registration by mail

—impose a fuel tax with the proceeds going for bridge construction or repair

—require a comprehensive AIDS education program

—require a waiting period before allowing abortions

—tighten up obscenity laws, particularly those relating to minors and pornography —require prison inmates without a high school diploma to attend classes

—create an organ transplant fund

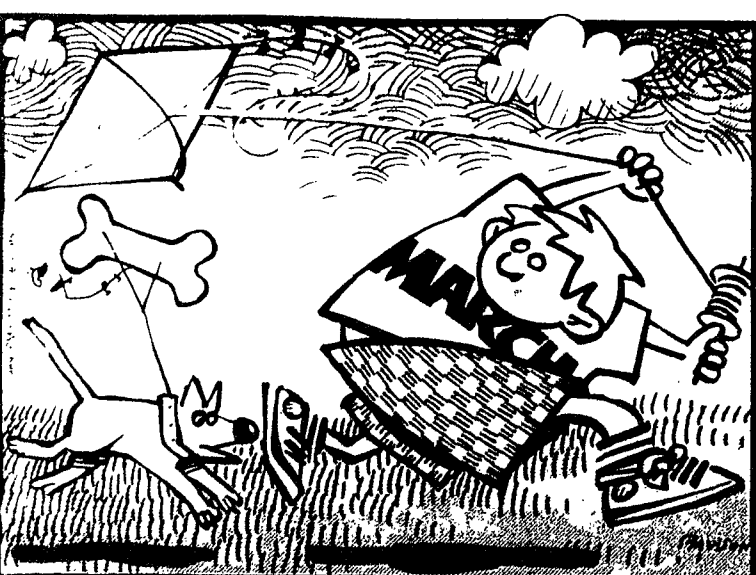

—make the theft of a credit card a felony

—make money laundering a crime

—create a State Department of Transportation

—require vehicle headlights to be on during precipitation

I would be glad to hear your views on any issue. You may write to me at the Mississippi State Senate, P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215 or call me at 359-3770. On weekends, I can be reached at 467-2399.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The information age is here, or is it?

To the Editor:

Access to information is quickly becoming the key to success in our global, information-based economy. Those with access have the edge.

Today telecommunications technology could bridge the gap between the information-rich and the information-poor, helping to equalize opportunities.

New technology could allow the local public telephone network to bring information services to more people, more quickly and more affordably.

Telephone access services could mean a vastly improved way of life for millions of Americans because so many have telephones or access to them.

The exciting news is that we already have the tools to put these services to work for us through the seven regional telephone companies like Bell South, which serves our area.

Some larger businesses in urban areas already use a variety of private information services, but they are not an option for most small businesses and the general public.

Making the services available to everyone depends on the regional telephone companies. For the past few years federal policy has prohibited these companies from developing information services.

Meantime, people in France can choose from among 10,000 different programs. We think it's time Americans enjoy the same kinds of services.

Why don't we have it?

Local telephone service in our country is provided by more than 1,400 companies, including Bell South and six other regional Bell Telephone companies. All companies except the Bell Companies are free to develop and disseminate new information services.

Volunteers commended in basketball program

Dear Editor:

The Bay Youth Basketball season just ended, and the parents and fans were treated to some very exciting and competitive games.

Special thanks to the director and coach, Robert "Chops" Williams, who did a great job organizing and coaching.

He put in a lot of time with the kids and taught them a good example by telling them, "If you quit on the basketball court, you will quit in school. Don't be a quitter!"

He also saw to it that each mation services.

Bell Companies have been restricted by law from developing information services. In the 1984 AT&T Bell System divestiture, the federal judge hearing the case prohibited the seven "baby Bells" from:

—creating or changing information sent over the telephone network;

—manufacturing telecommunications equipment

—providing most long distance services.

This means that although other communications firms are free to develop information services for the mass market, seven of this country's most capable telecommunications companies are forced to sit on the sidelines.

How can we get the services?

What we need is for Congress to lift the restrictions currently imposed on these companies, so that telecommunications equipment and information services can be made widely available to the general public.

Other communications companies will continue to be free to enter the market competitively.

Allowing the regional telephone companies to produce information services could make a significant difference to millions of Americans by affording them more productive lives.

Such services could provide a humanizing link to education, personal services, health care and vital information.

The issue is now being debated in Congress. We urge our Mississippi Congressional delegation to push for lifting these restrictions so that all of us can truly enjoy the multiple benefits of the Information Age.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor
Ray Mabus

Everyone in state needs to be counted in census

Mississippi is counting on you. In just a few days, the 1990 Census will begin in Mississippi and it's important that you get involved.

The 1990 Census will help us make important decisions about services we need in our state as we enter this new decade. It will help us determine whether our neighborhood needs a bigger school, another hospital or a senior citizens center. Maybe your community needs a job training center. The 1990 Census will show that, too.

The 1990 Census will show whether we have enough child care centers, suitable roads and bridges and a whole list of important things that can make life in Mississippi even better as we head toward the 21st century.

One of the most important principles of our democracy is the right to vote. Another factor in our democratic society is making sure that our vote counts when we go to the polls.

That's another area where the 1990 Census can help.

When we count every citizen in Mississippi, we're making sure that we get the right number of representatives and senators in Congress. Census information also helps update voting districts in our cities and on the state level.

And between elections, the 1990 Census helps us get our fair share of the billions of dollars the federal and state governments return to cities.

The 1990 Census can also help influence major business initiatives and can help us plan for the future.

The bottom line is: The 1990 Census will do many things to help Mississippi get the representation and share of federal money we need to perform those services that we all depend on.

April 1 is Census day. When you receive the 1990 Census remember, it's confidential and it helps us determine our course for the future.

Right now, the U.S. Census Bureau needs rural census takers. To get involved, all you have to do is call your local Mississippi Job Service Office or call this toll free number: 1-800-999-1990. It's a job worth doing and it pays over $5 an hour.

We're counting on you. Remember, it's important to fill out the 1990 Census.

By participating in this 200-year-old tradition, you will help chart the path that Mississippi will take to the 21st century. So please, answer the 1990 Census.

EPA seeks 'Special Area' designation for Gulf of Mexico to aid in debris control

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced the completion of a technical study designed to support the designation of the Gulf of Mexico as a "Special Area" under the provisions of an international treaty for the prevention of pollution from ships.

The treaty entitled, "The International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships," (MARPOL) contains an annex which lists criteria for regulating the discharge of all garbage from international shipping and provisions for listing "Special Areas" where discharge is prohibited.

Only when a member country can demonstrate that a body of water meets the criteria for a special area can the designation be moved forward for acceptance and approval.

Currently, no U.S. waters hold this designation and only five other bodies of water in the world (Mediterranean, Baltic Sea, Black Sea, Red Sea, and the Persian and Oman Gulfs area) have been so named.

The problems of marine debris in the Gulf are widespread with some parts of Texas coastal beaches recording over two tons of debris per mile.

The technical document authored by EPA officials in the Gulf of Mexico Program and the Oceanic Society provides a technical basis for a U.S. request to designate the Gulf of Mexico as a "Special Area."

A special area designation would mean that all ships in the Gulf would have to stop discharging garbage overboard and bring their solid waste to port. It is anticipated that the U.S. will formally move for special area designation of the Gulf in the near future.

"This study conclusively shows the need for Special Area Designation in the Gulf and we remain hopeful that the process will move expeditiously toward that objective," said Dr. Douglas A. Lipka, director of the Gulf of Mexico Program.

"This study conclusively shows the need for Special Area Designation in the Gulf and we remain hopeful that the process will move expeditiously toward that objective," said Dr. Douglas A. Lipka, director of the Gulf of Mexico Program.

Past studies and recent beach cleanup data have indicated that international shipping is one of the major sources of marine debris in the Gulf.

National census day scheduled for April 1

BY TRACI BONNEY

The census is coming to the Gulf Coast.

Census Day 1990 is April 1. This year's census marks the 21st consecutive census taken in the United States.

Gordon Boh, administrative assistant to Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre, said many people do not realize the importance of the census.

The census, in addition to helping determine how the membership of the House of Representatives in Congress is to be divided among the 50 states, also helps the federal government determine how federal grant money will be spent.

Boh said, "Everybody knows the story with Hattiesburg. Their census was plus or minus a few thousand, and they got bumped right out of what may have been millions of dollars of federal grants."

The Census Bureau started gearing up for the census in fiscal year 1984, according to a Census Bureau publication. The work on the census is scheduled to end in 1993 with the tabulation and publication of census results.

The results that are published take the form of statistics relating to various aspects of life, business, agriculture, government finances, foreign trade and other subjects.

Boh said, "I think the biggest problem we have is with the fear of people about answering correctly. For instance, they may be lying on another form and they are afraid they will be caught if they tell the truth on this form."

However, Boh said, the census information is locked away for about 70 years, during which time no person or organization can gain access to it, not even agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation or the Central Intelligence Agency.

By law (title 13, U.S. Code), everyone is required to respond to all Census Bureau questions when asked and also to bureau surveys.

Boh said the Census Bureau will conduct the census in this area in three steps. First, a systematic mail-out will send census forms to everyone in the area.

Second, those who do not fill out and return the first form will receive another copy of the form.

Third, a census interviewer will visit those who do not fill out and return either form.

A person can be recognized as a census interviewer if he or she is carrying a U.S. Census portfolio and wearing a highly visible red, white and blue official identification card. These interviewers are sworn to secrecy not to reveal any census answers under penalty of law.

Tax tips offered for forestland owners

Tax time is here again, and following is a little bit of warmed over advice for forestland owners who incurred forest management expenses or sold timber during 1989, the third tax year of the gradual phase in the 1986 Tax Reform Act.

Many timberland owners are still struggling with some of the new rules contained in the 1986 Tax Reform Law.

The toughest part of the new guidelines continues to be the passive loss rules that require a timberland owner to be classified in one of three categories: as an investor, a passive participant in a trade or business, or an active participant in a trade or business.

It is usually advantageous to be classified as an active participant, because all management expenses, property taxes and interest on trade or business indebtedness are fully deductible each year.

The importance of keeping accurate and complete records of all transactions relating to timber management activities cannot be stressed enough. Landowners must be able to document that they are "materially participating" in the management of their timberland.

Despite the bad news for timber owners included in the 1986 Tax Reform Act, there is good news. The reforestation tax credit and seven-year amortization, H.R. 1310, passed in 1980, is still available.

The tax credit allows you to deduct 10 percent investment tax credit for up to $10,000 in reforestation costs. In addition, you can amortize 10 percent of those expenditures over the next seven years for fully eight tax years.

The removal of the capital gains exclusion and rate differential for timber owners is also a severe blow nationwide reforestation efforts. We know the South were especially affected due to our vigorous tree planting efforts.

There is still hope that capital gains for timber will be restored. The capital gains provision was a decided boost to forest farmers in Mississippi whose crops are truly long-term investments. Here's hoping the President, with support from the Mississippi Congressional delegation and others, will be successful toward that end.

There would be a significant incentive for timber growers, no question about it. On another positive note, I want to remind that landowners who sold timber in 1989 can also benefit from the long-term capital gains provisions if they don't have to pay a 20 percent tax on capital gains.

Two other points to keep in mind as you file your return this year.

1. Cost-share assistance during 1989, such as the Forestry Incentives Program, FRDP, all Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) funds, must be reported, and.

2. Rental payments under the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) must be reported as ordinary income.

Timber tax provisions are complex. My advice is that you get help from a tax pro. A very limited supply of the U.S. Forest Service publication "Tax Tips for Forestland Owners for the 1989 Tax Year" is available.

from the State Forester's Office in Jackson, 301 N. Lamar Street, S-300, Jackson, MS 39201.

These are available free and requests will be filled on a first come, first served basis until they run out.

The Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service is another source of tax information for timberland owners. See your county agent, or write Dr. Tim Monaghan, MCFES, P.O. Box 5446, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Landscape trees and shrubs deserve chance at survival

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

During the next several weeks homeowners and gardeners will be planting trees, shrubs and fruit trees in their yards and gardens.

Some of these will be dormant, bare-root trees and shrubs, and some will be plants grown in one gallon, three gallon or larger containers.

Some of the trees and shrubs may even have the rootball wrapped in burlap or some other type of woven material.

Bare-root plants are those packaged with no soil on the roots. The roots are wrapped in some type of moisture-holding material, and the whole plants are packaged in some type of material to prevent drying out.

Guarantee the survival of these plants by keeping some important points in mind during the planting process. First, bare-root trees and shrubs are at the greatest risk of not surviving transplanting, and this risk increases as the weather gets warmer and growth begins.

Most bare-root plants have to be held in cold storage during the winter and early spring and are ready to begin growing as soon as planted.

The biggest problem with planting bare-root plants in mid-spring and later is that the tops begin growing before the root systems have time to establish.

For years the recommendation has been to remove at least one-third of the top of the bare-root plant at planting time to compensate for root loss during the digging process.

Several studies have shown this practice did not increase the survival rate when compared to non-pruned plants of the same type in the test.

Newly planted bare-root fruit trees such as peaches and plums should be pruned to a height of 30 inches. This practice is necessary to establish the fruiting limbs of the trees.

Container-grown plants are not at as great a risk of death from transplanting, because the roots are generally not disturbed at planting time. The plants are simply lifted out of the containers and placed in the planting holes.

Container-grown shrubs with roots tightly wrapped in the container (a condition called root bound) benefit from having the root mass disturbed by removing some of the soil and separating the roots.

For many years, the recommendation has been to slash the root mass with a sharp knife in several places prior to planting to encourage new roots to form on root bound plants. The value of this practice is being questioned, and in case of azaleas it is better to separate the root mass than cut it.

There is a saying, "don't put a $5 plant in a 50 cent hole." This leads many people to expend considerable effort to improve the soil in the planting hole by amending it with organic matter or even going so far as to completely replace it with an improved soil.

This practice can result in the newly planted tree or shrub never rooting into the native soil and therefore restricting the root system.

In soils with poor internal drainage, filling in the planting hole with improved soil may lead to plant death by drowning when the hole fills with water. Use the native soil when filling in the spaces around newly planted trees and shrubs.

Where the soil is poorly drained, shallow rooted shrubs such as azaleas grow better when they are planted on the surface of the existing soil and a well-drained soil or a soil mix containing a lot of organic matter such as finely ground bark or peat moss is piled around the root mass. A raised bed 6 to 10 inches high often permits growing azaleas in areas where the native soils prohibit their growth.

When planting a tree or shrub with the rootball wrapped in a woven material, loosen the material from around the top of the rootball after placing the plant in the hole. Pull the fabric down on the sides of the rootball, but don't try to completely remove it from the planting hole. Then fill the remaining space with soil, burying the fabric in the process.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

If I find it hard to resist the lure of the stalks of fresh asparagus in the market these Spring days, one of the "glory members" of the fresh vegetable family.

Did you know that asparagus is a member of the lily-of-the-valley family and that it grows wild in some parts of Asia? I wonder if they appreciate it as much when it's so abundant!

Thomas Jefferson grew asparagus in the greenhouse of his beautiful Monticello. The ancient Romans enjoyed asparagus, we are told, and the English in later times devoured it raw!

Asparagus came to our shores when early settlers tucked asparagus roots away in their trunks or satchels or whatever they packed their belonging in when they set out across the waters to their new homes.

The crisper than crisp stalks and tender tips are at their best (and choose the "skinny" spears, please, as I do) simply steamed briefly and served with lemony melted butter, or ever so lightly sauced with Hollandaise, or chilled in a Vinaigrette dressing of olive oil and herb vinegar and a bit of spicy mustard (Creole mustard for me) and so on, in my opinion at least.

Although I use cheese sauces, combinations and such with frozen or canned asparagus, I consider it almost a culinary crime to mask the taste of fresh asparagus (and other fresh vegetables) with too much seasoning or sauce.

I must confess that my love for fresh asparagus is not always shared by others close to me, some of whom consider fresh asparagus somewhat on the "tough" side—no problem, that's all the more for me!

Among my favorite ways

with asparagus:

ALMOND ASPARAGUS

1 lb. fresh asparagus (slim, meat stalks and tips you can find)

2 Tblsp. butter (or margarine)

1 Tblsp. lemon juice

1/2 cup blanched slivered almonds, toasted

Pepper, salt to taste

Wash the asparagus and cut, diagonally, into 1-inch pieces. Heat the butter in a skillet, add the asparagus pieces, and sauté for three or four minutes. Cover the skillet and steam for two minutes or so, until tender-crisp, and toss the asparagus with the lemon juice and almonds. (Four servings.)

There's also:

PARMESAN ASPARAGUS

For this variation on the theme, clean and drain the asparagus, and place in a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Pour over this a half stick of melted butter and the juice of half a lemon, adding pepper and salt to taste. Sprinkle very liberally with grated Parmesan cheese. Place under the broiler just until the topping browns.

Or serve the asparagus, quickly steamed, with lemony melted butter. There's much debate as to the proper way to cook and serve fresh asparagus, from the purer-than-purer purists who insist upon special steamer pans, to cooks such as I, who use a coffee pot (with the stalks standing upright as they steam in the water) or a wide skillet, in which the stalks rest side by side, barely bathed in lightly salted water and steamed until crisp-tender.

I also like to arrange fresh asparagus, lightly cooked, over sliced baked or boiled ham; or with thin slices of ham rolled around the stalks, with topping and seasoning of my choice.

Chicken provides tasty, low-fat diet alternative

America's poultry industry is truly a major agribusiness today, employing more than 150,000 people and commanding six percent of the nation's total food expenditures.

According to the National Broiler Council, the industry, in the course of growing and processing poultry products, spends $12 billion annually for a wide range of products and services, ranging from corn to electronic media. Economists say the "multiple effect" expands that expenditure four to five times as the dollars ripple through the economy.

In an effort to make school lunches more nutritious, the U.S. Department of Agriculture surveyed 177 food service directors nationwide. Asked what kind of change they would like in federal assistance programs, 73 percent said they would like to receive more low-fat commodities, such as chicken.

The National Broiler Council estimates that 58 percent of all chicken produced in 1989 reaches the consumer through retail grocery stores. This compares to 70 percent in 1981.

Big gainers as chicken outlets are fast food restaurants. In 1981 they accounted for 22 percent of chicken production, compared to 32 percent estimated for last year. Other restaurants used 10 percent of chicken produced in 1989, an increase of two percentage points over 1981.

During the last four decades, consumers have increased their consumption of chicken more than eight-fold, from seven pounds per capita in 1949 to 67 pounds in 1989. For 1990 it is estimated that Americans will be eating an average of 72 pounds of chicken each, surpassing the consumption of both beef and pork for the first time.

With per capita consumption of chicken expected to reach new heights this year, everyone is looking for new ways to serve it.

The Chicken Cookbook, published by the National Broiler Council, contains the 51 finalists from the 38th National Chicken Cooking Contest plus a number of other recipes. To order at the special price of $1.75, send check or money order to: Chicken Cookbook, Department NBC, Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

HEALTHFUL CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cooked, skinned, chopped

1 package (10 ounces) frozen spinach

1/4 cup finely chopped onion

1/2 teaspoon garlic powder, divided

8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced

2 tablespoons diet margarine, melted

1 cup skim milk

Mozzarella cheese

Cook spinach according to package directions, eliminating salt; drain well. Mix onion with spinach and arrange in bottom of 1 1/2 quart baking dish.

Sprinkle with 1/4 teaspoon of the garlic powder. Arrange mushrooms on spinach and drizzle with melted margarine. Place chicken on mushrooms and sprinkle with remaining 1/4 teaspoon of the garlic powder. Top with mozzarella cheese. Place in 375 degree oven and bake for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings. Calories: 202 per serving.

Sous-vide convenience food gaining in U. S. popularity

Years ago, the first boil-in-bag foods came out -- easy cooking -- no dirty pots to clean. Well, the years have brought many changes and improvements in foods -- this is only one -- Haute Cuisine in a Boil-In-Bag? The French have done it -- created a gourmet convenience food.

They call it sous-vide (pronounced "sue veed", meaning "under vacuum") or "new generation" refrigerated food.

It is food prepared by a chef and sold, refrigerated, in a vacuum-packed plastic bag or microwaveable container.

The buyer heats the package in boiling water or a microwave oven.

This new process for preparing food is gaining momentum in American supermarkets and a few restaurants. Carnation, Kraft and Nestle are test marketing entrees which are selling well in the United States.

Experts predict that sous-vide foods may one day replace many canned and frozen foods in supermarkets because the extreme temperatures used in canning and freezing food slightly affect flavor, whereas these vacuum-packed refrigerated foods have a more fresh-cooked taste.

Sous-vide foods, of course, need careful handling to be certain they don't spoil. The chain of refrigeration must be maintained until final heating. Otherwise, botulism or other dangerous food poisoning could result. FDA Consumer Magazine, reporting on new foods, suggests three ways to avoid the risk of bacterial contamination of vacuum-packed refrigerated foods:

-- Keep sous-vide foods refrigerated.

-- Observe expiration dates. Don't depend on your nose to tell you if food is spoiled. (Cooking in the sous-vide process kills otherwise harmless microorganisms whose foul odor can warn of spoilage)

-- Heat well, following package directions.

The French might add one more suggestion:

-- Enjoy!

and treasurer of the Bay St. Louis Rotary, served as the new club's secretary until a charter was received. The new club's secretary is now James R. Williams, who was elected by the board of directors.

The district governor's representatives appointed by Charles (Dusty) Rhodes, Bay Rotary president, are David Treutel Jr. and Ellis Cuevas. Plans for the new Rotary Club were finalized when the district governors met with the sponsoring club in August, 1989.

Bay Rotary sponsors club

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Rotary Club is the sponsor of the Diamondhead Rotary, which will celebrate with a charter night banquet on Friday, March 23.

The Bay St. Louis club agreed to sponsor a club at Diamondhead during the district governor's annual visit in August, 1989.

Bay Rotary president Charles (Dusty) Rhodes appointed past club presidents David Treutel Jr. and Ellis Cuevas as the district governor's representatives for the provisional club.

The Diamondhead Rotary Club is the first new club in Rotary District 684 since 1986.

Dr. Milton Wheeler is the District 684 governor, and the territory includes South Mississippi and South Louisiana, with Diamondhead being the 45th club.

Rotary International approved the new club's charter on February 23, 1990, Rotary's 85th birthday.

The sponsorship of the Diamondhead Club was voted on 1989.

The Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, which received its charter in 1925, has 82 members and shares Hancock County as a territory with Diamondhead Rotary.

Members from Bay St. Louis who have transferred to the Diamondhead club are Stephen Planchard, who was Bay president-elect; Jessie Stonecipher, David Compretta, Paul Montjoy, Robert Parker and James R. Williams.

Members from the sponsoring club, along with representatives from other clubs in the district, will attend the charter night to be held at the Qualidome, Diamondhead, from 6 to 9 p.m.

Denis J. Inkel, District Governor nominee, will make a presentation of charter member pins, and Le Breton will be the master of ceremonies.

Rotary is an organization of business and professional leaders united worldwide who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical stands in all vocations and help build good will and peace in the world.

"Service Above Self" is a Rotary motto.

Presentations from other clubs in the district will be made by H.F. (Hank) Frank, senior advisor to the governor.

The Diamondhead Rotary meets at 12:10 Thursdays at the Qualidome, Diamondhead, and Bay St. Louis Rotary meets at noon on Wednesdays at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

and approved by the Bay club, where it was decided the two would share the territory of Hancock County.

In September 1989, Bay Rotary President Rhodes and members Treutel, Cuevas, Stephen Planchard, J. Cyril Glover and Jesse Stonecipher met several times to begin planning the formation of the Diamondhead club.

A committee was formed to survey potential membership for the new club. The committee included Planchard, Treutel, Stonecipher and Cuevas.

The first meeting of the provisional club of Diamondhead was held in November with more than 30 potential members present.

The provincial club held several more meetings at noon on Thursdays at the Diamondhead Quality Inn.

The group studied the objectives of Rotary, membership requirements, attendance requirements, classifications, adopted a constitution and by-laws, elected a board of directors, officers and then submitted a charter request to Rotary International in January 1990.

The charter request contained the names and classifications of 35 members for the provisional club.

The first organizational meeting of the Bay St. Louis

Rotary Club was held on May 25, 1925. A charter for 22 members was received on July 29, 1925.

The Bay Rotary has been in continuous operation since 1925, meeting Wednesday of each week.

Governor approves bill granting civil service

BY DENA BISNETTE

Governor Ray Mabus has signed a bill giving Hancock County Sheriff's Department personnel civil service status.

State Representative J.P. Compretta, who introduced the local and private bill at the request of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the sheriff's department, said the governor signed the bill earlier this week.

"It's law for Hancock County," Compretta said.

The bill will apply to full-time employees other than the sheriff himself and his chief deputy, provided that those workers have qualified for their job under all other requirements, including the Minimum Standards Act where it applies.

The Minimum Standards Act is a set of requirements for law enforcement personnel and applies to all employees who have patrol duties. Sheriff Ronald Peterson, who supported the bill, said all current deputies with patrol duties have already fulfilled those requirements.

The civil service protection is designed to effectively keep a newly elected sheriff from being able to fire employees for political reasons, Compretta added.

The protection also extends to non-patrol employees, including clerical, jail personnel, dispatchers and others with full-time status.

Peterson said the bill is one of two local and private bills of its kind approved for Gulf Coast sheriff's department. Harrison County has received approval for a similar service bill for its sheriff's personnel.

By Dena Bisnette

Local bodybuilder Charles Hawkins will travel to Mobile, Ala., this weekend to participate in the Mr. Natural Gulf Coast competition.

The competition, Hawkins' first for the 1990 season, is strictly drug-free and is a qualifying contest for the Mr. Natural Universe meet later this year in Las Vegas.

Hawkins has collected numerous trophies over the past few years and is often involved in local programs which try to make young people aware of drugs and the harm they can cause.

Good luck to him this weekend and to any other local bodybuilders who may be going to Mr. Natural Gulf Coast.

Now that the weather has stabilized, Cycles Plus Bicycle Club is starting Sunday rides again. The first one is the Red Bluff ride and anyone who wants to go should meet at the K-Mart for 6 a.m.

If you're interested in shorter rides for starters, several Cycles Plus members have volunteered to lead Saturday rides. Call the bicycle shop at 467-1706 for the time and place of these rides.

Intramural basketball new to BCE

Special to the Echo
Bay Catholic Elementary School found something new to cheer about this year with the formation of its first intramural boys' basketball team.

Although the team could not boast a winning season the first time around, coach Frank McGovern said his players did gain from their first shot at competition.

"This was a learning experience for our boys," McGovern said. "They did a good job."

The Bay Catholic team played six games in the intramural league, which included teams from St. Clare and St. Stanislaus. All the games were played in the St. Stanislaus gym, which should give the young basketball players a "feel for playing on a high school level, since they will be going on to Stanislaus next year," said McGovern, who is BCE's physical education instructor and track and field coach.

Bay Catholic team members included sixth graders Casey Heitzmann, Correy Gex, Jeremy Compretta, Raymond Tracy, Josh Ladner, Marcel Singleton, John Guy, Thalys Ladner and Steve Scianna.

Also on the team were fifth graders Drew Ladner, Frank McGovern Jr. and Kurt Satchfield.

Jump for Joy Club hosts Pony Club Dressage Rally

The Jump for Joy Pony Club will host the United States Pony Club Regional Dressage Rally at the Happy Valley Farm March 17-18.

Approximately 48 competitors, age six through 18 from Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Georgia are expected with their horses.

The participants will be tested on their knowledge of horse care, feeding and stable management. They will also compete in two dressage tests and a musical freestyle at each rider's level.

Ribbons will be awarded to the winners in each division with six riders being selected to represent the region at the Pony Club National Championships held this August in Culpepper, Va.

The United States Pony Club, a non-profit organization of volunteers, began in 1954. It is modeled after the British system.

Pony Clubs across the United States strive to develop safe riding skills and sound horse management while nurturing children's love for horses.

They have developed a proficiency scale which tests all aspects of horse care and riding ability. Membership is open to all children. Every effort is made to provide horses for members who don't have them.

Pony clubbers participate in combined training, dressage, show jumping as well as many other mounted activities.

Dressage, the French word, means to train. It represents a gradual, systematic approach that teaches a horse to move freely, using his natural gaits in a relaxed obedient manner, harmoniously accepting the rider.

In competition, the horse is required to perform a sequence of movements in exactly the order stipulated on a test sheet while being graded by a competition judge. The object of the test is to evaluate the horse and rider's stage of development.

The public is invited to attend this regional rally. Take U.S. Hwy. 98 West from Hattiesburg to Bellevue and follow the signs. Judging begins promptly at 8:30 a.m.

Marine life explored in summer 'Sea Camp'

Registration is now under way for Project Marine Discovery Sea Camp at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J.L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi.

Now in its third year, Sea Camp is an educational summer day camp program for students ages 6-14 designed to foster an awareness and understanding of Mississippi's fragile marine and aquatic environments.

Activities include boat trips, films, field excursions, hikes, laboratory demonstrations, aquarium tours, arts and crafts and other hands-on projects.

Sessions this summer for children ages 6-12 are scheduled for June 11-15, June 18-22, July 9-13, July 16-20, July 30-August 3 and August 13-17.

Programs for students ages 13-14 will be offered during the weeks of June 18-22 and July 30-August 3 only.

Fees of $65 for ages 6-8 and $75 for campers ages 9-14 cover admission fees, transportation and instructional costs and materials. A $10 pre-registration fee is required.

Dr. Sharon H. Walker, administrator of the MEC&A, noted that there were waiting lists for most sessions last summer and urged parents to register their children as soon as possible for the 1990 program.

Turkey hunting safety urged

By Eva Ann Dorris
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

As the population of the state's wild turkeys continues to stabilize in some areas and expand in others, the number and enthusiasm of turkey hunters also continues to escalate. With the opening of turkey season last Saturday, more than 65,000 resident turkey hunters are expected to take up the challenge of bagging a wild turkey.

Turkey populations are stable enough to support a spring turkey season in all but 16 counties in the state. Lee and Tishomingo counties are completely closed to turkey hunters.

Parts of 14 other counties are closed as the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation continues trapping and transfer efforts to establish turkey populations.

gun," Griffin said. This means within 25 to 30 yards.

According to Griffin, the best hunting time is early morning. "Turkeys gobble on the roost and sound off before they fly down," he said. "Hunters can locate the turkey and try to set him up with a responding call."

"It is essential that hunters wear complete camouflage," Griffin said. "Turkeys can pick out details even without movement."

Because hunters are completely camouflaged and because hunters have become so good at imitating the gobble of a wild turkey, safety is a major concern to hunters and wildlife officials.

"Turkey hunting has become probably our most dangerous type of hunting," Griffin said. "Particularly among novice hunters who may not have learned to be completely sure of their target."

Be sure of the target, do not shoot at sound and do not shoot at movement are Griffin's warnings to hunters. He recommended all hunters prop against a tree.

"This helps camouflage hunters, and it also protects their backs from other hunters who may mistake their gobbling for a turkey."

Griffin warned that hunters shouldn't wear anything with red or white on it.

"An excited gobbler has a lot of red. Its waddles (the fleshy part that hangs from the neck) turn blood red, and its head can turn from almost blue to white," Griffin said. "We have had hunters mistaken for gobblers. Several hunters have been shot, and we have even had some killed."

Griffin said with the mild winter and the excellent acorn crop, turkeys should be in good shape.

"They are heavier during this time of year and will start losing weight into the breeding season," he said.

"Some areas were experiencing drought conditions during crucial periods of the reproductive cycle, and this may lead to low populations in some areas, but overall, we should have a pretty good turkey season," Griffin said.

The wet winter has left some turkey habitats with an unusual amount of standing water. Griffin said this won't harm the turkeys, but it will be a nuisance for hunters.

Turkeys prefer bottomland, hardwood habitats or open timber areas, but they will establish in pine plantations, pine-hardwood areas or any area where they have protection.

"These counties are closed either because turkey populations are absent or because we currently have efforts underway to establish populations in the area," said Dr. Bob Griffin, wildlife biologist and research coordinator with MDWC. Conservation officers can inform hunters of closed and open areas for hunting.

The first turkey season of 1990 began March 17 and closes April 2. The second season begins April 4 and closes May 1. Hunters are allowed to kill two male turkeys per season and three per licensed year.

As with other types of hunting, hunters may begin 30 minutes before sunrise and must stop 30 minutes after sunset.

"Spring turkey hunting is scheduled to coincide with peak gobbler activity of male turkeys—they gobble to attract female turkeys," said Griffin. Hunters attempt to imitate the sounds of wild turkeys to call the birds up or get them close enough to shoot.

"The challenge is to call the turkey up to close enough range to be able to kill it with a shot-

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Intent to Supplement the Final Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) Environmental Impact Statement (EIS)

AGENCY: National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA)

ACTION: Notice of Intent to prepare a supplement to the ASRM EIS. This notice is intended to provide information on the ASRM Program containing updated information on environmental impacts at Stennis Space Center (SSC).

THE Draft and final EIS's for the Space Shuttle ASRM Program were issued on December 23, 1988, and March 17, 1989, respectively. In March 1989, NASA announced that it had determined that approximately 14 lands subjects to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (COE) jurisdiction was significantly expanded. At that time, four Federal agencies were notified that approximately 200 acres of lands subject to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (COE) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), a jurisdictional determination of wetlands was required for identifying wetlands. At the recommendation of the COE and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), a jurisdictional determination of wetlands was required for identifying wetlands. At that time, approximately 200 acres of SSC would be affected. This determination procedure was documented in the final EIS and the Supplemental EIS. Since the release of the final EIS, designs have progressed, NASA has since revised the test stand location to further reduce wetlands impacts, and the SSC has been notified of the proposed changes.

Supplement the information provided by the Agency and the supplement to the final EIS will provide additional, site specific information addressing physical definition and layout to minimize physical and biological impacts from exhaust products. During preparation of environmental permits necessary to implement the decision to start the test runs, NASA has been alert to develop permit procedures to evaluate and develop mitigation plans to protect human health and the environment. The supplement will include information regarding the following:

NASA anticipates that the supplement will be available by June 1990. Notice of Availability will be published in the Federal Register. Once the supplement is completed, it will be distributed to local libraries, Government officials, and local organizations. Letters of request will be received during a public comment period. Comments will be documented and answered on an individual basis.

Correspondence concerning this issue should be addressed to: NASA Headquarters, Code 6804, Code 440A, Stennis Space Center, MS 39529-6000.

Thomas is recipient of Wal-Mart scholarship

Joe Vick, manager of Waveland Wal-Mart, announced the selection of Courtney Thomas of Bay St. Louis as the 1990 recipient of the $1,000 Wal-Mart Foundation Community Scholarship. The scholarship is awarded each spring by Wal-Mart to an area college or university bound high school senior and is payable over a one-year period.

Courtney, a senior at Bay Senior High School in Bay St. Louis, plans to attend USM in Hattiesburg this fall.

Vick said, "It is with great pleasure that we announce Thomas as the winner of this year's scholarship. It was a difficult decision for our team of well-qualified, local judges who had to select from many outstanding students."

Vick went on to say the scholarship's criteria is based primarily on academic performance, involvement in the school and community and financial need.

Thomas has been active in the Student Council, Youth Legislation Committee, National Honor Society and year book staff.

Scholarship alternates selected are first alternate Jennifer Johnson of Waveland, attending Bay High, and second alternate Do Nguyen, attending St. Stanislaus.

The Waveland Wal-Mart Foundation Community Scholarship is one of more than 1,200 scholarships totalling $1.3 million being given throughout the Bentonville, Arkansas-based retail chain's 27-state, 1,325-store trade territory.

SCHOLARS VISIT—Kathy Carpenter of Bay St. Louis, right, talks with Marjorie Wheeler, assistant dean of USM's Honors College, during the University of Southern Mississippi's Scholars Day. Academically talented high school seniors and their parents, invited to the campus for the day, received an overview of USM's Honors College program. Carpenter, an 18-year-old senior at Bay High School, is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Van Carpenter.

REAL CHARLOTTE

"The Real Charlotte," a three-part "Masterpiece Theatre" presentation adapted from a novel by Edith Somerville and Martin Ross, who wrote the "Irish R.M." begins Sunday, March 25, at 9 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

This unique writing partnership, which featured the two cousins, produced 13 novels during the later half of the 19th century.

Now widely regarded as the authors' finest creation, "The Real Charlotte" is, in turn, richly comic, suspenseful, dramatic, romantic and tragic.

It offers a plot that begins gently and then grips its audience with its rich array of characters from primitive peasants to the eccentric aristocrats of the Anglo-Irish society of the time.

Heart recipient celebrates life after transplant

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bill Kelly comes from a family with a history of heart problems, which killed three of his eight siblings and would have killed him had he not undergone a successful heart transplant 16 months ago.

Now, he spends much of his time counseling people who are awaiting donor hearts and surgery at University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson. He also helps Gulf Coast chapters of the American Heart Association with their public awareness efforts.

"I used to be a block worker for the Heart Fund. I always felt that if I worked hard for the Heart Association it would come back us had it. I lost three brothers," Kelly said. "They were 39, 43 and 48 when they died."

"Three of us had had bypasses. One had two of them done. My own lasted 14 years but recurring heart attacks had just destroyed the heart muscle."

In April of 1988, doctors at University Hospital told Kelly that only about 21 percent of his heart muscle was functioning.

"They said a transplant was my only option," he said.

Kelly is self-employed in real estate, based in Gulfport and working primarily with commercial sales and development and is also an entertainer who is currently experiences some side effects from the constant medication.

He credits research for making transplants successful. More anti-rejection drugs are being developed and Kelly said he has been told that a less expensive drug with fewer side effects is expected to be on the market within a year.

Part of that research is financed with donations to the American Heart Association. According to Marge Kasper, golf tournament chairperson for the Hancock County Heart Association, 25 percent of the money raised by the local chapters goes to the national organization to help fund research.

The other 75 percent

"He told me he had never seen a heart so bad still keeping someone alive. He said it came apart in his hands when he took it out of my chest," Kelly commented.

"This work has to keep on going. I had to have surgery myself, but it needs to be made more and more possible that most people with chronic heart problems will be able to avoid surgery and the complications of surgery."

He also added that people who donate to their local heart associations will be happy to know that more of the money has returned to the Mississippi Gulf Coast because another coast resident recently received a transplant.

"This work has to keep on going. I had to have surgery myself, but it needs to be made more and more possible that most people with chronic heart problems will be able to avoid surgery and the complications of surgery."

—Bill Kelly

to my family some day. I never dreamed it would come back to me," Kelly said.

To celebrate a year of life with a transplant, he parachuted out of a plane in Gulfport in November.

"I came up with it on my own and I went through with it, but I was scared stiff. I had never done anything like that before," he said.

Kelly is scheduled to be one of the presenters at the awards ceremony which will close the Hancock County Heart Association Golf Festival on April 21 at Diamondhead.

Kelly, now 56, said he was told in 1987 he had six months to live unless he received a transplant and managed to outlive that deadline, but wound up losing two possible transplants when the hearts could not be used.

He said the hearts were both so badly damaged because the donors had been cocaine users that they were in worse shape than his own.

Bypass surgery was not a possibility. Kelly had already had a triple bypass at the medical center, also known as University Hospital, in 1976.

"Our family had a history of heart problems; I was one of nine children and seven of appearing at Rooster's in Kilm.

He said he was playing the piano at the Broadwater in Biloxi when the beeper he had been given to wear went off, letting him know University Hospital had located another donor heart.

Kelly had surgery on Nov. 27, 1988.

He said he was back home from Jackson two weeks later, having received the heart of a 19-year-old college athlete killed in an auto accident.

"Here I am, with a heart which would have been destroyed...I know. I just feel so much better," said Kelly.

"My attitude has always been push, push, push. I never slowed down before the transplant. I still haven't slowed down much; I can ride 10 miles on a bicycle without stopping."

"Most people think these people who get other organs spend their time just moping around on a can, sitting around in their pajamas. It doesn't have to be that way."

The recipient said he knows he has still has some limitations. He must take anti-rejection drugs, although he personally has not had problems with any attempt by his body to reject the heart as some transplant recipients have.

Like all transplant patients, Kelly said he remains in Mississippi.

Kelly said University Hospital is known as a research facility which was important in the development of heart transplant techniques and technology and particularly for work in development and testing of drugs such as cyclosporin, before which transplants were not successful.

"Research works. I wouldn't hesitate to try the new products," Kelly said.

"And, most importantly, as a result of all the research, they've come up with preventatives. They can stop it before it got to the point mine did; that's best. They've also learned how to deal with heart problems when they occur."

One of the major problems in dealing with heart disease is a lack of public education, he added.

"The main thing is to make the public aware, both of funds needed for research and the need for donor organs for transplant," Kelly stated.

He said he was 12 on a waiting list for a transplant when he received his. He also saw two of the people ahead of him on the list die while they waited for donor hearts.

The doctor who did his transplant told him he could have easily died during the wait as well.

Bill Kelly. Kelly will be among the presenters at the awards ceremony for the association's annual tournament, which will be played Saturday, April 21 at Diamondhead Country Club's Cardinal Course. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Heart golf registration continues to April 14

The registration deadline for the Hancock County Heart Association's sixth annual Golf Festival is April 14.

The event will be played April 21 at Diamondhead Country Club's Cardinal Course.

Participants will have their choice of a shotgun start at either 8 a.m. or 1 p.m., but the field will be limited to the first 60 teams entering.

The $60 per player fee is a tax-deductible contribution to the Hancock County Heart Association and includes green fee and half a cart fee. In addition, participants will receive a free five-by-seven color photograph and refreshments on the golf course.

Two special prizes for holes-in-one have been donated for the festival, including a Mercury Topaz from the Bubba Oustalet dealership in Gulfport and a round trip for two from New York to Copenhagen from Scandinavian Airlines.

After the tournament, awards and door prizes will be presented at a lawn party hosted by Mac and Emma Casse, 7707 Golf Club Drive, across from Cardinal's 18th green. The social is open to non-participants for a $10 donation.

Registration information should include names, addresses, handicaps and telephone numbers of each team member and should indicate if players wish to be paired with another entry.

Registration and fees may be mailed to Herb Larson, 6838 Hilo, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

For more information, contact festival chairman Steve Planchard at 255-2660.

The event begins with happy hour at 11:30 a.m., followed by a noon luncheon featuring dishes prepared by the Diamondhead Country Club chefs, David Crabtree and John Byers.

MEDICAID SCREENING

Thursday, April 12 is the day the Medicaid folks will be in the conference room at the center to screen those who may be eligible to receive this benefit.

The amount of income a single person may receive has been raised for our 65-plus persons. You now may have $491 and still be eligible as long as you don't have more assets than are allowable. Couples' maximum is $652.

If you know anyone who has low income, tell them about this as many don't know they may now be eligible since the maximum has been raised.

Medicaid is the medical payment that assists low-income persons pay for their Medicare, doctor bills and some medication.

You can believe many of our folks need this help as some are paying as much as more than half their income for doctors, insurance and prescription medication.

PILGRIMAGE

The Garden Club has invited the senior citizens to come to the opening of the Bay-Waveland Pilgrimage at their center Thursday.

Many will go to all of the events, but we will take our more handicapped to the center and later view the Walking Track which is on the tour.

Bay Catholic Science Fair winners progress to Regional

Special to the Echo
With stars in their eyes and scientific theories in their heads, Bay Catholic Elementary School Science Fair winners are gearing up for regional competition.

The fourth, fifth and sixth grade students who participated in the school fair submitted projects in categories ranging from botany to behavioral and social sciences, physics and engineering. They presented their work to the student body and to parents during a school assembly.

The projects entered by first and second place winners will be judged at the Region Six Science Fair Friday at the Gulf Coast Coliseum.

Bay Catholic's fair entries were judged by a group of professionals, which included six NASA scientists and three teachers. Most of the NASA personnel have experience in science fair judging, according to Ramona Travis, who is dedicated to encouraging scientific careers among young people, particularly girls. "The novice judges had a good time," she added.

Despite the grumblings of some parents who may feel nine and ten-year-olds are too young for such competition, Travis said she supports the idea of conducting fairs at this age level. "We think it is helpful toward encouraging young people's interest in science," she said.

Winners in each category are: Botany: first, Andrew Harris; second, Corey Gex; third, Emily Alford.

Behavioral and Social Sciences: first, Edna Delgado; second, Sarah Breerwood.

Chemistry and Biochemistry: first, Karin Hargett; second, Julie Heitzmann; third, John Guy.

Math, Computer, Earth and Space: first, Keyes Stahl; second, Margie Harris; third, Michelle Frank.

Physics and Engineering: first, Thomas Genin; (no second); third, Page Harder.

Zoology, Medicine and Health: first, Marion Labat; second, Monique Hazeur; third, Karen Parker.

First and second place winners will go on to the Regional Science Fair.

Winners by grade include: Fourth Grade: first, Keyes Stahl; second, Margie Harris; third, Thomas Genin; honorable mention, Brant Ryan and Page Harder.

Fifth Grade: first, Karin Hargett; second, Matt Dillenkoffer; third, Sarah Taylor; honorable mention, Erin Favre and Kathryn Scaife.

Sixth Grade: first, Andrew Harris; second, Julie Heitzmann; third, Karen Parker; honorable mention, Monique Hazeur and Marion Labat.

Judges from the NASA Science and Technology Center in addition to Ms. Travis, included Jim Anderson, Bill Cibula, Gay Irby, Dale Quattrochi and Bruce Spieriny.

Also judging were Theresa Braud, chemistry instructor at Our Lady Academy, and Ramona Wadsworth and Cindy Ackers, first and third grade teachers, respectively, at Bay Catholic.

Pass Christian students earn Miss. Scholastic Art Awards

Pass Christian High School students received several honors during the recent Mississippi Scholastic Art Awards Exhibition.

All 13 entries received certifications, and two were named Hallmark Nominees. Twelve were awarded gold keys and seven earned blue ribbons.

The two Hallmark Nominees and five of the blue ribbon winners will be forwarded to New York for national judging and competition.

All of the entries currently are on display in the Atrium Galleries at the Mississippi Museum of Art in Jackson.

Of 1,431 entries from 51 high schools, only 480 were accepted. Pass Christian High School was the only school from which all entries were accepted for competition. Pass Christian High School also was recognized for winning two of the four Hallmark Nominee Awards given.

Individual honors were presented to the following students:

Hallmark Nominees: Hanslizae Cook and Delton Lizana.

Blue Ribbons: Terry Ladner, Charles Lizana, Larry Morreale, Ho Nguyen and Long Nguyen.

Gold Keys: Nicole Bodenschatz, Chris Dedeaux, Donnette Hawthorn, Dwayne Swanier and Donald Wahl.

Certificate of Merit: Neil Clark.

Schreiber receives second semester scholarship award

Jennifer J. Schreiber, a 1989 graduating senior of Hancock North Central High School, has received the second semester award of $250 from the Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship Fund.

Jennifer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Schreiber of Diamondhead, is attending University of New Orleans on a scholarship as a French major with career plans in international marketing. This semester she has added German to her curriculum as a second foreign language.

The Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship Fund is administered by a board of seven members. The scholarship award is presented annually and is open to any qualifying senior of a high school in Hancock County.

ON ETV

EARLY CHILDHOOD

What can Mississippians do to ensure that their children get the best start possible? The Mississippi State Department of Education will broadcast a live, interactive "Teletalk" titled "A Good Beginning Never Ends," Wednesday, March 28, at 3 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

The first week in April has been designated the Week of the Young Child in Mississippi.

Dr. Boyne Coats of the Mississippi Association for Children Under Six and chairperson of the Week of the Young Child Committee, will discuss the week's scheduled activities.

Joining Dr. Coats for this and a discussion of early childhood education will be Jo Prather of the Mississippi State Department of Education and host Cynthia Bowers.

Viewers will have the opportunity to interact with the panelists by phoning in their questions during the live broadcast.

PUT AN END TO THE THREAT OF TERMITES.

Some True/False Questions About Termites.

True or False? Termites can only attack a home if there is wood in direct contact with the ground.

FALSE. Termites can build mud tunnels many feet long to carry them across concrete, iron, treated wood, or any other material to reach the vulnerable wood in your home. Termites have been known to eat a wooden knob off the top of a thirty-foot-tall steel flagpole.

True or False? If you've never seen a termite swarm, you've got nothing to worry about.

FALSE. Most people with termite-infested homes have never seen a swarm. Termites swarm only once or twice a year, and only for a few hours. If you're not right there at the right time, you can easily miss it.

True or False? If you do see a termite swarm inside, it means your house is infested by wood-damaging termites.

FALSE. A swarm inside or outside a house should be a warning that termites are present in the soil beneath. It is possible that wood-eating workers have not yet invaded. Swarms will not eat wood, so there is no reason to fear them. Call for an immediate professional inspection, though, before workers become a problem.

True or False? Subterranean termites don't always live underground.

TRUE. Most subterranean termites build nests in the soil, and then tunnel into a home. But under certain moisture conditions, subterranean colonies can exist within the building under attack. To correctly determine where termites are, and to be sure you're getting the right protection, always call a trained professional.

True or False? Some types of construction are "termite-proof."

FALSE. Many types of shields and walls have been devised to prevent termites, but none of them has been 100% effective, and termites can find a way around them.

True or False? Termites don't attack homes built on slab-type construction.

FALSE. This kind of home is particularly vulnerable. Termites can enter through concrete, mortar, and brick. And once inside a slab-type home, they're almost impossible to detect until damage is discovered.

True or False? Termites can be found in new homes.

TRUE. It's not just in old or run-down buildings that termites are found. They've been discovered in new houses as early as four days after construction was completed.

What you don't know about termites can hurt you, but don't be frightened - be protected. Terminate termites with REDDITT PEST CONTROL - Your termite specialist - protecting homes in Hancock County for over 11 years. REDDITT, a name you can trust for all your pest control needs.

Coast Episcopal students visit Washington, D.C.

Special to the Echo

The fifth and sixth grades of Coast Episcopal Elementary School recently returned from a week-long trip to Washington, D.C. and Williamsburg, Va.

The trip, a bi-annual tradition for many years at Coast Episcopal, was planned by the parents and staff of the school and arranged through T. L. H. Hancock Travel of Bay St. Louis.

Mark Lesniewski, head of the social studies department, said the fifth and sixth graders spent much of the first semester preparing for the trip by studying the origins of our country, the early Mayflower and Jamestown settlements, the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution and through the Revolutionary War years.

He replied, "A lot. We saved the eagles and kids from going back to Beijing."

Polly asked, "Is your job hard?" Mr. Taylor replied, "Yes, it is very hard."

Highlights of the trip to the Williamsburg area included a visit to the site of the battle of Yorktown as well as to the replica of the original Village of Jamestown.

In Williamsburg, the students enjoyed seeing life as it was lived in the 18th century. In addition to visiting the House of Burgesses, the Governor's Palace and other historic sites, they saw cloth being woven and silver melted and poured.

In Washington, the students toured the White House, Mount Vernon, Arlington Cemetery and the Department of Archives where the Constitution and Declaration of Independence are displayed.

Uram, Wes Pugh, Gannon Puckett and Buddy Dauterive.

SEN. TRENT LOTT

Accompanying the group as chaperones were Ann Hopper, Barbara Dauterive, Ellen Kane, Nancy Uram, Sandy Hartwell, Lucille Mortimer, Susan Dane, Helen Mancuso, Mimi Salloum and Mark Lesniewski.

Acting as guides and representing Hancock Travel were Rose Marie Smith and Margaret Marks.

Coast Episcopal fifth and sixth grade classes

Upon returning to Bay St. Louis, the trip was a very favorite thing for many of the students. Courtney Hopper, a sixth grader, said, "I was playing with a guy named Tim on his farm." said Tim.

They really enjoyed one of the teachers, Mr. Lesniewski. Then the teachers said, "We had a good time."

They also saw the FBI Building, Ford's Theater, and the Capitol where they met with Senator Thad Cochran and Trent Lott and Congressman Gene Taylor for question and answer sessions.

Their visit included the Smithsonian Museum where they saw exhibited the Hope Diamond, the Kitty Hawk, and the flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the Star Spangled Banner.

One of the most beautiful parts of the trip was an evening tour of the city including the Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Viet Nam and Iwo Jima Memorials, all illuminated for night time viewing.

Fifth graders participating were Yvonne Salloum, Amelia Taylor, Jolene Perry, Brooke Hartwell, Courtney Hopper, Danielle Inabinet, Michael Mancuso, Robert Lambert, Marc Morley, Joel Carter, Kippy Chamberlain, James Collins and Andrew Lander.

Sixth graders were Dannette Frederich, Polly Lambert, Jennifer Debenport, David Bell, Bryan DiNicola, John Dane, Sanders Kane, Alan

KA-BOOM! YOU JUST GOT HIT BY THE POWER OF NEWSPAPER.

You never saw it coming.
You were thumbing through the paper, minding your own business.
When suddenly this ad caught your eye.
And your interest.

Newspapers don't read themselves.
you know. It takes two, a newspaper and you.

That's why newspaper is such a powerful advertising medium.
It requires your full attention and complete concentration.

The radio can be playing to nobody in particular, and the TV can be on in an empty room.

But when people turn to their paper.
They turn there with interest. In fact,
76.5% of Mississippi's adults regularly read their local, community newspaper.
Which means that's where your advertising message needs to be.

With all the choices available, it's difficult deciding how best to advertise your business.

But everything becomes a little simpler when you remember one rule.

YOU
IN THE
